A Heavy Argument.

In our last issue, in an item headed "Crevasse," we mentioned the fact that we had been informed that the water had made its appearance in the cellar of the "flag store"—Neisen & Co.—and that, in our opinion, that building could not stand the pressure. The head of that firm, upon reading our article, was very indignant that we should entertain such an opinion, and called on us with a ten-pound-club-argument, and he "convinced" us that his cellar was very dry. In proof of which fact, the following notice was posted on his "outer-walls," which we copy verbatim et literatim:

Notice of Water at Sandy Hook! No water in the cellar yet! Not even moist! We let down again our sugar And have no Fear! Our House is NOT build on Sand but Rocks Therefore We believe that the wishes of our Enemies are NOT fulfilled until the present date The "Flag Store" (so-called) we think is all right "in our opinion."

$10,000 merchandise shipped to Tucson by Baker. *

INTERESTING.—We have information from private correspondence in San Francisco, that a large amount of Government funds ($300,000) left there under a heavy escort for the United States Depository at Tucson, which, we believe, must have arrived there ere this. We know of this in time to have informed our readers over a week ago but as secrecy is supposed to be security against Mexican bandits, we refrained from mentioning until now.

Female Duelists.

Ramona, alias Negueritta (romantic appellation derives from her complexion) and a new importation from Sonora named Rosa, both living in the Rincon, and possessing no very good name for virtue, challenged one another, on Tuesday afternoon, to fight to the death. The cause: "jealously." The preliminaries were arranged in accordance to the code of honor; the weapons were daggers, and the place chosen was a neighbor's house. At the appointed hour, 3 o'clock, the parties marched to the field of battle, but the woman refused to allow the use of her house for such bloody work, whereupon Rosa invited her antagonist to her stately mansion as the place where the difficulty could be settled without interference. Negueritta accepted the courteous invitation, and the two started for the place of combat. Rosa was fully determined to to her work, and do it quickly. Negueritta, was more so, and to make certain her victory, she allowed her antagonist to get a few steps ahead of her when she drew a Derringer from her pocket and fired at Rosa, but, fortunately doing no damage more than the loss of a curl, which the ball, passing through her hair, cut off as though done with a knife. The day following, they were still on the war-path. Negueritta had the black flag flying from her castle, to show that "no quarters" were to be given, while Rosa had the red flag hung out on her outer-walls, and ready for the fray. Arbitrators have been appointed, however, by both parties, and there is hope of an amicable settlement between them. Our police knew nothing of this. They don't live in that portion of town. The District Attorney, we understand, will have this matter looked into.

River News.

The Mohave, Capt. Thorne, arrived from Ehrenberg at 4½ p. m. on Sunday. She left for Port Isabelle on Monday at daylight. She arrived here on her return trip yesterday afternoon, at 1 o'clock, with first of cargo from brig Josephine.

The Cocopah, Capt. Mellon, arrived from Mohave at 8½ Tuesday morning. She left for Mohave on Thursday, at 7½ o'clock a. m.

Mr. Wm. D. Gentry, a telegraph operator in Nashville, Tenn., has invented a device for propelling railroad cars by the power of electricity. He claims that a speed of one hundred miles an hour can easily be attained. "A committee of scientific gentlemen, appointed by the Nashville Industrial Exposition," has made a favorable report on his invention.

Justice Mix's Court.

Last Monday evening, Mrs. Maize was brought up before Justice Mix, charged with assault and battery upon an Indian child. The Jury in this case, after being out all night, returned into Court Tuesday morning, without having agreed upon a verdict. Whereupon another venire for twelve Jurymen was issued, and the case tried again on that evening. This time the Jury returned a verdict of guilty of assault. Wednesday morning, Justice Mix sentenced the woman to $50 fine and costs, the whole amounting to $111. In default of which she was confined to prison. The counsel for defendant filed a notice of appeal but failing to furnish the required bonds, she was remanded to prison. During that day Mr. Maize, the husband of the woman above named, went into Justice Mix's Court, and there insulted him, whereupon the Judge fined him $50 for contempt of Court, but as money seem to be scarce in the family, he too was confined in Jail in default of payment of fine. The man and wife and three little children, besides the "indispensable" dog, are now enjoying the luxuries of the Hotel de Ville.

Since writing the above, the counsel for defendant applied for a writ of habeas corpus before Judge Porter, which was denied, but in view of the fact that the record from the Justice's Court did not show that a bond on appeal had been presented to Justice Mix, the Court ordered that the attorney for defendant prepare a good and sufficient bond, and present it to the aforesaid Justice. The bond being prepared, Justice Mix approved of the same, and discharged the prisoner.

PERSONAL.—Judge Porter and lady and Judge Reavis, arrived from Mohave, on the Cocopah, on Tuesday last.

Wm. P. Miller, of Castle Dome, is in town. He expect to stop operations on his mine on the 1st of July, on account of the heat, when he will make a visit East.

QUERY.—Can a person run a ferry across our public streets, demand toll, and not pay a licence for the same? This conundrum is respectfully dedicated to the proper authorities. We hope they will look to it.

CROWDED OUT.—A poem entitled "Electoral Lyric," by P. C. A. R., together with several other interesting items, is unavoidably crowded out.

Letter of Recommendation.

The following will illustrate or manifest how wanting the parties in power are of a true knowledge of the Indian character, and of what element the humanitarian East consist:

STEAMER NEWBERN.

March 28th, 1872.

I have seen Spam A. Cora for the last seven days, and have been pleased with his kindness, industry and good conduct. He wishes to know how many troops have been in Arizona.

One Company

[Here the undersigned tallies by ten until 100 is counted, and then a long row of figures covers half the sheet of paper, and then he adds them up.—ED.]

All gone in.....2,300 More coming.

Spam A. Cora must love God! love man, and do right!

Indians' Friend,

O. O. HOWARD.

Brig Gen. U. S. Army.

It is somewhat mysterious how a person can gain a knowledge of the true character of such an individual as the subject of the above letter in so brief a time; but, out of charity, we will suppose that it is an attribute not experienced by any but those who are sent to Arizona for the purpose of gratifying the wishes of the so-called religious associations East.
